Gary Klarenbeek has had a burning passion for choral music since he was a youngster being raised on a farm in Northwest Iowa. He received his Bachelor's Degree with a degree in Church Music and Organ and Voice Performance. He has served churches in Iowa, St. Louis, Houston, Naples, Florida, and most recently Auburn, Alabama for the past 23 years. He is known for his eclectic programming through community outreach concerts usually performed with full professional orchestra utilizing a diverse mix of styles from the classics to the Pops. He lives by the choral mantra of "classic and traditional never have to be boring" and strives to make church choral music vibrant and exciting for the singers. He has recently developed a choral seminar entitled "Everything I Learned About Choral Music I Learned from 'Sister Act'" which he is making available to other churches across the country. He is married to his wife of 45 years, Julie and they have two grown daughters (one a professional singer) and six grandchildren.
